

Clayton Neill

Former trustee named to board

CLAYTON B. Neill Jr., who served two terms on the Carmel Unified School District board of education before stepping down in 1969, was appointed Tuesday to fill the unexpired term of Trustee Edward T. Reilly Jr. Reilly resigned Jan. 1 because of a job transfer.

Neill, 48, a consulting engineer, was appointed on a unanimous 4-0 vote by the school board. He was one of 15 persons who had applied for the post. The appointment is a provisional one. Trustees must observe a 30-day waiting period before Neill can join the board in an official capacity. A successful petition drive for a special election would force his appointment to be withdrawn.

"If I were appointed," Neill told the trustees at the four-hour interview session Tuesday, "I might come back and rock a few boats."

Neill was one of five finalists selected by the school board. The others were:

- Gail J. Buche, 39, active in school affairs, especially the Early Childhood Education Program at Tulareitos School. She is the president of the Carmel Middle School Parent-Faculty Club.

- Richard A. Krueger, 43, past president of the Carmelo School Parent-Faculty Club and an owner of the Valley Hardware Co. He said his three sons have done better in Carmel district schools than ones elsewhere.

- Dr. Glen Myers, 43, former president of the parents' club at Carmel High School and a professor at the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey. Myers ran unsuccessfully for the board in 1971. He said, "As parents, we have been slightly disappointed by the middle school. The high school is excellent, but the middle school ages are crucial." He said more discipline and homework were needed at Carmel Middle School.

- Roberta Watson, 39, chairman of the Early Childhood Education program at River School and a member of the Hart Bill Steering Committee.

THE FIELD was narrowed to five after each trustee wrote the names of five contenders on a blank piece of paper. The five most frequently mentioned took seats before the school board and were questioned for 90 minutes.

On a second ballot, three names were solicited from each school board member. The results were announced by Pamela D. Smith, the board president, but she erroneously listed the first, second and third top vote-getters. She mentioned Neill first, Myer second and Mrs. Watson third.

Mrs. Smith quickly corrected herself and said there was agreement that Neill should be appointed as the fifth trustee. Trustee Richard T. Wilsdon offered the motion; it was seconded and passed without dissent.

After the meeting, the trustees explained that Neill's name appeared on all four ballots cast. They declined to say which of the other candidates finished second in the balloting.

NEILL WOULD serve on the board until March 1979, when Reilly's term was scheduled to expire. He is a graduate of Carmel High School and has a master's degree in business administration from Stanford University. He is a director of the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District and the Monterey Marlins Aquatic Club. Neill was the president of the Carmel Rotary Club in 1976. Neill is a principal partner in Neill Engineers, Inc., Carmel and Monterey.

Others who applied for the post and were interviewed Tuesday were:

- James C. Anderson, 37, principal of Roger S. Fitch Junior High School at Fort Ord; Clarence E. Dickinson, 65, a retired community college teacher; Noel D. Frodsham, a retired community college teacher; Dr. Al Giordano, 53, a teacher in the business department at Monterey Peninsula College; Carencay Hanel, 38, a former teacher; Dr. Jeffrey Lehr, 35, an allergist; Victor Myers, a textbook writer; Barbara B. Sanford, 52, a businesswoman defeated in a 1975 bid for the school board.

Two applicants did not come for an interview. They were Walter C. Gory Sr., a retired investment banker, and Mildred D. Wollet, a retired teacher.

Supervisors delay Marriott

"THIS WAS not an intentional oversight. It was merely a lack of procedure," Lynn Mounday, the senior county planner, admitted Tuesday as the Board of Supervisors started an abortive review of the proposed Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge.

He was answering several complaints that the important certification hearing on the lodge environmental impact report was put on the supervisors' agenda without giving the public adequate notice.

Without further discussion about the contents of the study, an eight-page addition to the original report, the supervisors reset the hearing. It is scheduled for Tuesday, Jan. 31, at 3:30 p.m. in the county courthouse in Salinas.

"I just got the information 30 minutes ago," Mary Ann Matthews, secretary of the Carmel Valley

Report excerpts, p. 4

Property Owners Association, told the board. "I feel we need at least a week."

REFERRING to Mounday's remark, Carmel Mayor Gunnar Norberg declared, "It is more than an oversight." He said Carmel city officials only learned of the hearing the day before.

Notice of the hearing was given only in the agenda for the meeting. The agenda was received by the Carmel Valley Outlook on Saturday.

One of the supervisors, Kenneth Blohm, said he did not receive a copy of the impact report until Tuesday morning.

Supervisors Michel Moore and R. Edwin Norris opposed the delay, but later voted to reschedule the hearing. The original impact report was declared incomplete by the supervisors on Oct. 4. Moore voted

PEOPLE IN Carmel complain about stray dogs like New Yorkers gripe about muggings.

Of the city's 600 licensed dogs and the countless ones without licenses, surely one or two stray where they shouldn't every day.

Carmel doesn't let a sleeping dog lie — that is, when it is unlicensed or running stray downtown. In 1968, the city hired a part-time "animal control" officer. Today it is a fulltime position filled by Pamela Mason, a 35-year-old Carmel Valley resident.

A former dog trainer and car racing team member, Miss Mason has worked for the city since November. "I don't really catch the dogs, they catch me," commented the pig-tailed dog catcher.

Some dogs that are "repeat offenders" know her so well, they run up to her truck and jump in on their own accord, she said.

Who complains the loudest about loose dogs and their droppings?

Storekeepers and senior citizens, answers the animal warden.

DOGS CAN run virtually free in most of Carmel, she noted. Restrictions, however, are placed on dogs in three locales: the business district (leash required), the beach (owner must be present) and Devendorf Park (no dogs allowed).

Fido is free to roam just about anywhere in the city's residential district — as long as he doesn't leave droppings or make too much noise.

If he does, or if your dog is caught roaming the business district without a leash, you could face a $35 fine.

All citations require that the owner appear in person before a court judge. Repeat citations could result in even higher fines, under Monterey County laws.

Dog licenses can be purchased at the City Hall for $5. For dogs that are not neutered, the fee is $10.

Carmel also has a law limiting the number of dogs to four in a single residence. Miss Mason said she has never enforced that law.

Residents, more so than tourists, tend to break the city's animal control ordinances, said the officer.

Scout awards

THE EAGLE Scout award was presented to Shawn Evans by Edward P. Foote, while the Assistant Senior Patrol Leader's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Evans, shared the happy occasion.

Doug Ward bounces tennis ball 1,558 times

When Mrs. Douglas (Sue) Thamer quipped, "Tennis, anyone?" to the students at Tularcitos, she had an overwhelming response of 70 fourth and fifth graders who signed up for the program.

A "bounce-off" ended the first semester instruction with Doug Ward placing first with his ability to bounce the ball on his racquet 1,558 times.

Also posing a threat to Chris Evert and Jimmy Connors are: Mike Lee in second place with 1,166 bounces; Robert Zarazua, 3rd with 845; Doug Stevenson; 4th, 458 bounces; and James Cooper, 306.

Michelle Brackenrich led the distaff competition with 110 closely followed by Jenny Wolf with 109. Kelly Koontz was 3rd and Tina Crivello, 4th.

"An old oak leaf cluster" to Sue for her time devoted to instruction.

Donation sought by SPCA for Mid-Valley thrift shop

Recycled items at bargain prices await buyers at the Mid-Valley SPCA Thrift Shop located next to the Valley Cinema. Established a year ago (one in Pacific Grove and one in Carmel), the shop is staffed by volunteers who last year provided over $40,000 for their organization.

Mrs. William (Vera) Meyer, of Country

Club Drive, has been named manager for 1978 and is assisted by Mrs. Nick (Mary) Skalyo, of Horizon Way.

Quality re-saleable merchandise includes clothes, jewelry, paintings, books and records. Donations are always welcome and may be taken to the store during business hours noon to 4:30 p.m. six days a week.

Casarez, Goodrich wed, establish home in Valley

Friends are extending warm wishes to Frances Casarez and Edward Goodrich, who exchanged wedding vows on Dec. 28 at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Howard Bull.

Frances's attendants included her sister-in-law, Mrs. Peter (Diane) Garneau, and the Casarez children, Lloyd, David and Louie.

Serving as groom's men were his son, Bill, of Carmel, and Bob, of Lake Isabella.

A champagne luncheon followed at the Story Road home of Diane and Pete Garneau. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Mel Tice, the bride's mother and stepfather, from Dunigan; Mr. and Mrs. Romie Garneau, of Pebble Beach, the bride's father and stepmother; Mr. and Mrs. Dean Diaz, of the Valley; and the groom's aunt, Miss Helen Furrner, of Pacific Grove.

The couple will reside on Aliso Road.

Tularcitos principal is recovering

A speedy recovery to Tularcitos principal Phil Smith, who has been released from the hospital, but is under doctor's orders to rest and recuperate at home for a month before returning to his desk.

The ship is in good hands during his recovery with former district assistant superintendent and onetime Middle School principal Orville Rogers at the helm.

End water rationing, managing agency told

MANDATORY WATER rationing on the Monterey Peninsula should be ended, the Peninsula Water Management Agency was told Monday by the Zone 11 Water Advisory Committee.

"There is no reason they shouldn't return to Phase Zero," Edwin Lee, a member of the committee, said after the meeting. Household water users supplied by California-American Water Co. have been restricted to 50 gallons per day, the Phase Two level, since Feb. 18, 1977. The Zone 11 committee did not suggest that restrictions be lifted on commercial users. The latter were told to cut back from 15 to 35 per cent based on consumption figures from 1976.

'There is no reason not to return to Phase Zero.'

If approved by the management agency, the return to Phase Zero would remove mandatory rationing and the fines that could be imposed on violators.

Harold J. Boudreau, administrator of the Water Management Agency, said that he would prefer not to abandon the rationing program altogether until it is clear that the Peninsula could get through the summer without a return to rationing. He stated that he would recommend a move to Phase Two at the Jan. 25 meeting of the agency. Under Phase Two rationing, residential users would be allowed 63 gallons per person per day.

The pumping capacity at Cal-Am wells, 14 of which are in Carmel Valley, has returned to the 34.4-acre-foot-a-day level, Richard Sullivan, vice president and general manager of the water company, said at the meeting. The State Public Utilities Commission ordered rationing on the Peninsula in February, but it said if the pumping capacity rose to the 34.4-acre-foot level, mandatory rationing could be lifted, Lee explained Tuesday.

SULLIVAN ALSO told the advisory committee that Cal-Am was negotiating to sink four new wells on private property in the Lower Valley area. He indicated the firm also might seek to build an iron removal plant there to purify water pumped from the new wells.

In response to a question from the board about how much of the water supplied would be for drought relief and how much to supply new customers, Sullivan said that he could not say. The number of new customers presumably will increase when the Canada de Segunda pipeline is completed and the present moratorium on new water hookups is lifted.

In a report issued Dec. 19, the State Water Resources Department said new wells would be needed if the drought continued. Carl Stetson, district manager for the department, also said the Carmel River aquifer could be recharged with a "couple" months of normal rainfall.

John Williams, of the Zone 11 board, pointed out Tuesday that the aquifer is recharged by the flow in the Carmel River, not by the rainfall alone. The aquifer could be recharged in two months of normal flow in the river.

Records from the Los Padres Dam, at the headwaters of the Carmel River, showed more water was spilled into the river in December, when heavy rain began here, than in any December since 1973, the wettest of the last five years.

Williams stated that a report from the Monterey Flood Control District, which monitors wells in the Valley, showed a rise in the water level of 4.9 feet since October. The level rose 1.5 feet in the first week of January.

Judi Engle returns from horse seminar

Judi Engle of Animal Farm attended a post-Christmas seminar at Bell Canyon Equestrian Center in Southern California. Taking careful notes at sessions on training, riding, shoeing and general horse care, she returned to Carmel Valley loaded with useful information.

For instance: Doug Downing, manager of Bell Canyon Equestrian Center, reminds riders that the pressure of a tightly girthed saddle, compounded by the weight of a rider, can interfere with blood circulation in the horse's back. He recommends a stimulating massage of the area or a wash down with warm water after unsaddling.

Panetta reports saving $35,000 in Hill expenses

REP. LEON E. Panetta (D-Monterey) has returned $35,000 in salary and office savings to the U.S. Treasury, his aide, Steve Page, said last week. Panetta represents Carmel and Carmel Valley, where he lives.

Sending back his own pay raise, which totaled $4,257 for a nine-month period in 1977, Panetta also finished the year with about $5,000 remaining in his allowances for travel, office supplies and other expenses. Panetta also saved $25,000 from his allowance for staff salaries, Page said.

The savings are automatically returned to the Treasury Department, he added.

"I believe that belt tightening begins at home," Panetta said. "While these sums may not seem large in comparison to the overall federal budget, they are an example of the kind of savings that can be achieved through careful spending and oversight at every level of government."

Last year, the freshman legislator paid for his own meals and lodging. Travel bills charged to the government were limited to trips between Washington, D.C., and Panetta's district, with the exception of one trip to Minnesota and Iowa as a member of the House Agriculture Committee for field hearings on family farms, said Page.

Panetta made 31 round trips to his district to meet with constituents. He flew coach instead of first class, the aide said.

Panetta also had a 96 per cent attendance record for votes in Congress, according to Page.

THE MOST important thing," Panetta said, "is that in achieving these savings, I was still able to expand congressional services to the 16th District. My field offices have handled a case load of almost 2,000 individuals and families with problems relating to the federal government, and my Washington office has responded to an average of 400 letters a week on various legislative issues."

Although congressmen were allowed over $14,000 in 1977 for office space rental in home districts, Panetta was able to locate field offices in Monterey, Salinas, Hollister, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo for a total of $11,150 per year, largely through the cooperation of local governments.

Panetta could have spent $63,651 on travel between Capitol Hill and his district, his office said, and up to $259,641 for support staff.

PANETTA'S figures showed that he saved almost 10 per cent of these amounts while returning his $473-a-month pay raise, passed for all congressmen in March 1977. Panetta currently has 16 staff assistants, nine in Washington and seven in his district.

"If we could get all federal officials and representatives to save 5 to 10 per cent of their respective budgets," Panetta said, "this would have a significant impact not only on spending and the economy, but more importantly, on restoring public trust in a government that is efficiently and effectively delivering services to the people."

to obtain the added environmental information. Norris did not.

"We must draw the line somewhere and I feel this is where we should draw the line," Moore said, trying to start the hearing. Norris also indicated he wanted the proceeding to begin.

The addition to the impact report analyzed issues related to the water supply, sewage disposal and the economic effects of the multimillion dollar proposed resort. The original report, compiled by the county planning department staff, was released in July 1977.

"THE PRIMARY inadequacy of the EIR — failure to take up cumulative effect — was not addressed. Nothing was done to address the obfuscating generalization of data," Norberg complained in a letter delivered at the hearing.

"No comment is made regarding the absence of discussion of air quality though James Abercrombie of the Monterey Bay Unified Air Pollution Control District states that data is available and that a report on air quality in Carmel Valley was recently finished by Robert Read and air quality was addressed in the Holt Ranch EIR," he said.

The golf and tennis resort would be situated near the mouth of the Carmel River, adjacent to the Rancho Canada golf courses.

If the impact report is certified, the resort developers could seek a use permit to build from the Monterey County Planning Commission.

residents is mostly cordial, Mason said. Citations are usually issued only to repeat offenders, she added.

On more than one occasion, the dog warden has loaned leashes to tourists with dogs in the business district.

MISS MASON is employed by the Carmel Police Department, although she is not a sworn officer. Her uniform consists of a denim jacket, jeans, gloves and a badge.

The small truck she drives during working hours has a cage, but she said she has never used it.

"The animals I find ride up in the front seat with me," she explained.

There is no good way to catch an animal, she said. Dog biscuits seldom work. Chasing dogs is hopeless. "They can just sense when it's an animal control officer," she said.

A recent encounter with a deaf dog that never heard her approaching left her with a minor bite on the hand.

The smaller dogs are the toughest to catch. She says they also are the meanest.

After a dog is caught, she immediately checks for a license. If she cannot contact the owner, the dog is turned over to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) on the Monterey-Salinas Highway.

Owners have five days to pick up their dogs before the dogs are offered for adoption.

Dogs not adopted are killed with a sodium phenobarbital injection, according to John Tiernan, the SPCA executive director.

"I'm not trying to catch dogs, I'm trying to protect them," commented Miss Mason.

The worst part of her job, she said, is turning puppies and kittens over to the dog pound.

She said cats should be licensed just like dogs. That would limit the number of stray cats, she contended. Because she is the animal control officer for the city, she has also been asked to aid an injured sea lion, and even to remove a rat from a resident's lawn.

Miss Mason has worked as a bartender in Florida and also as an official timer for the Ecurie Escargot racing team, a touring team of professional Porsche car racers.

Now that the rains have finally arrived, the most often heard comment in families which have children has been, "There's nothing to do." While you're ripping your hair out and casting around for ways to keep your offspring happily occupied, you might think of us. Just in case you hadn't, let me give you the lowdown on what a good place our children's room can be for your children.

First of all, we have the obvious — books. (Land sakes, Em, what will they think of next?) We have picture books, easy readers, dog stories, horse stories, sports stories, romances, mysteries, big books, short books, fat and skinny books — all kinds of books. (Just like the old king's daughters in the fairy tale, each book is more beautiful than the last.)

Secondly, we have two children's magazines (Ranger Rick and Cricket) which may be checked out.

And now for the good part! We have a toy and game bookshelf which contains Scrabble, chess, dominoes, cuddly toys and trucks. These are all for use inside the library. If your toddler plays with the peg board, you might have time to find a book yourself. (Finding time to read it is another story, but we can't help you there.)

I have saved the best thing (for harried mothers, at least) for last. We like babies and toddlers, and don't mind noise. We tend to be a little noisy as libraries go. Bring your toddler in and don't be embarrassed if it's not his best day.

People of all ages join these relaxing, easy to perform movements.

LOCAL CLASS SHOWS HOW TO RELAX AND FEEL YOUNGER

The world's most ancient system for physical and mental fitness proposes that age has little to do with how many years ago you were born. Rather it depends upon how many of the "characteristics" of age you possess. A person can be "old," stiff and out of shape at 30, and can be youthfully vital and flexible at 70.

What are some of these characteristics? Let us compare the 6 major areas:

YOUTH

1. Flexibility — suppleness — agility; grace — poise — balance.
2. Ability to relax as necessary — calmness — composure — serenity; restful sleep.
3. Vitality — energy — endurance.
4. Proper blood circulation resulting in the health and strength of vital organs and glands.
5. Resilience of muscles resulting in firmness, taut skin, strength.
6. Normal weight (in accordance with bone structure) and ability to control and correctly distribute weight.

AGE

1. Stiffness — tightness — immobility — awkwardness — lack of poise.
2. Tension — nervousness — irritability — poor disposition; insomnia.
3. Fatigue — weariness — exhaustion.
4. Inadequate blood circulation with resultant dull complexion, wrinkles; general poor health.
5. Loss of muscle tone resulting in weakness, sagging and flabbiness.
6. Obesity, inability to control and maintain correct weight.

The Yoga For Health program is a system of slow motion body stretches, breathing exercises and relaxation techniques that comprise an ideal plan for achieving physical and mental fitness. Its practice results in removal of excess fatty tissue, better muscle tone; increased flexibility and vitality, relief from tension, and deep relaxation of body and mind.

Proposed Marriott lodge

Excerpts from EIR

CERTIFICATION of the Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge environmental impact report was heard at the Board of Supervisors' meeting of Oct. 4, 1977. The supervisors directed staff to prepare additional information concerning impacts on groundwater resources, sewage treatment alternatives, employment and the economics of low- and moderate-cost housing.

GROUNDWATER RESOURCES WATER SUPPLY IN THE CARMEL VALLEY

The principal source of groundwater for the Monterey Peninsula is now, and will be in the foreseeable future, the Carmel Valley alluvium. In addition, the Peninsula's entire supply of surface water is taken from the Carmel River by way of the San Clemente and Los Padres dams. Carmel Valley's groundwater supplies are based on the following two factors: the volume of alluvium and the aquifer's recharge capabilities.

Available Storage Capacity

THE CALIFORNIA State Water Resources Department Zone 11 Investigation of 1974 concludes that the total alluvial volume in Carmel Valley is 317,855 acre-feet, and that a sustained annual yield of 15,000 acre-feet of water can be obtained if the water table is lowered "an additional 10 feet" throughout the Valley. This information was recently updated by the Department of Water Resources.

Robert Greenwood's (registered geologist) study indicates that the total volume of alluvium is 248,551 acre-feet, considerably less than the 317,855 acre-feet of the Zone 11 study. Greenwood estimates the available water storage as 23,242 acre-feet.

When referring to "available water," it must be emphasized that the calculated figures are maxima, based on taking all the water out. In practice, that is not technically possible, even if it were environmentally permissible.

We can perhaps consider 10,000 to 12,000 acre-feet of extraction as technically feasible, provided: the aquifer is full to begin with, which is not so in drought years, and natural inflow will compensate for the withdrawal — again, not assured in drought years.

It is probable that even with additional well fields throughout the Valley, yields of 15,000 acre-feet can be obtained only in years of normal or excess rainfall.

Only 19 per cent of the alluvium lies within Cal-Am's Mid-Valley well field; 57.2 per cent of it lies further downstream, and 23.8 per cent further upstream. However, these percentages do not reflect the distribution of available groundwater, because most of the water downstream from Meadows Road is below the sea level gradient, and cannot be safely extracted without risk of saltwater intrusion.

However, it should be noted that it is technically possible to utilize a portion of the water below sea level gradient, provided that a system of artificial recharge is installed near Highway 1 as a barrier against saltwater intrusion, with provision for regular monitoring. The quantity of water thus obtainable will depend on the recharge system and provision for irrigation of vegetation throughout the lower Valley.

It appears that, when the aquifer is fully charged, Cal-Am's Mid-Valley well field contains 30.5 per cent of the available water, approximately 7,093 acre-feet. Another possible 7,660 acre-feet accumulate in the upstream basins.

The largest reservoir of available water appears to be the 8,489 acre-feet lying above the sea level gradient between Meadows Road and Highway 1. However, the water quality in this area is poor due to the high mineral content.

Recharge

THE AQUIFER is substantially depleted during a sequence of dry years due to the aquifer's limited storage capacity. It is unlikely that yields in the 10,000 acre-feet range could be consistently maintained, although it is precisely during such dry periods that the Peninsula will make its greatest demands upon the aquifer.

Preliminary information from Monterey County Flood Control and Water Conservation District indicates that groundwater levels in the Carmel Valley have dropped an average of 14.6 feet over the two-year drought between 1975 and 1977.

Wells in the lower portion of the Valley (west of Highway 1, east to Via Mallorca near Hacienda Carmel) have shown an average drop of approximately six feet over this same two-year period (data are on file with the County Planning Department). In normal years, the water table in the Valley alluvium fluctuates about five feet between wet and dry seasons. The six-foot drop in the lower portion of the Valley would thus represent an insignificant drop in the groundwater

Two sewage ideas

SEWAGE TREATMENT ALTERNATIVES

(From Culp-Wesner-Culp, consultants for Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge)

THE ENVIRONMENTAL impact report for the Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge discussed two alternatives for treatment and disposal of sewage. The following discussion applies to alternative two, in which the effluent is treated and blended with the raw water supply and used for golf course irrigation. There will be approximately 62,870 gallons per day (gpd) to treat.

The state of California requires that effluent used for irrigation of golf courses be oxidized, with a median coliform bacteria not to exceed an mpn of 23/100 ml.

There has been some concern with the relatively shallow groundwater table located below the golf course. Chances of pathogenic bacteria contamination or trace organic concentration increases are very remote.

The remaining concern is nitrate concentration increase in the aquifer. However, the effluent is diluted by approximately 10:1 by raw water. Therefore, a nitrogen content of 20 to 25 ppm is reduced to 2.0 to 2.5 ppm, the latter values being well below critical levels.

The treatment process train would consist of a flow equalization basin (aerated and mixed), an extended aeration activated sludge process, filtration through granular media and chlorination. The extended aeration process will produce a relatively stable sludge, thus eliminating the need for expensive sludge-processing equipment.

The sludge produced could be used as a soil conditioner. This would be extremely valuable in growing replacement sod for the golf course.

The extended aeration process includes an aeration basin and clarifier with sludge return and wasting facilities. Filtration is provided to insure adequate solids removal thus minimizing sprinkler clogging. Chlorination is provided to reduce pathogenic bacteria to meet public health standards.

Following chlorination the effluent would be piped to a tank or basin for blending with well water and then on to the irrigation system.

WASTEWATER DISPOSAL THROUGH IRRIGATION OF OFF-SITE AREAS (From Culp-Wesner-Culp, consultants for Rancho Canada Marriott Lodge)

An alternative to irrigating the Rancho Canada Golf Course is to export treated effluent to irrigate a golf course where groundwater quality is not a concern.

The treatment process train would consist of a flow equalization basin (aerated and mixed), an extended aeration activated sludge process, filtration through granular media and chlorination. The extended aeration process will produce a relatively stable sludge, thus eliminating the need for expensive sludge-processing equipment.

Col. Samuel L. Stapleton, commandant of the Defense Language Institute (DLI), will be the guest speaker at the Thursday, Jan. 19, meeting of Monterey Peninsula Branch of Sons-In-Retirement at Rancho Canada Golf Club.

Col. Stapleton, a 1946

graduate of the U.S. Military Academy, served in both the Korean and Vietnam conflicts as an artillery officer. During an assignment in Spain, he earned his master's degree in languages at the University of Madrid in 1959 and later headed the Spanish department at West Point. He also served in the Pentagon as an assistant to the Deputy Secretary of the Army for International Affairs. Col. Stapleton was military attache in Buenos Aires for two tours of duty before being appointed commandant of the DLI in August 1975.

His topic for the speech will be "Terrorism in Argentina."

Newly elected officers and directors, headed by "Big Sir" W. Lyle Wallace, will conduct their organization meeting at 10 a.m., followed by the happy hour at 11 a.m., and the luncheon and program at noon in the banquet room.

Obituaries

Charles Allaire dead at 60

Charles Joseph Allaire, 60, died Jan. 4 at his home in Carmel Valley. Allaire, a lifelong resident of the Peninsula, succumbed after a lengthy illness.

Born Feb. 12, 1917, in Pacific Grove, he was a painting contractor for 42 years. He had retired 18 months ago.

Allaire was a charter member of the Carmel Valley Volunteer Fire Department, a president of the parish council at Our Lady of the Valley Catholic Church and a member of the Knights of Columbus, Billy Burke Council, Carmel.

He is survived by his widow, Dorothy Allaire, of Carmel Valley; sons Ric and Mark Allaire, also of Carmel Valley, and Steve Allaire, of Albuquerque, N.M.; daughters Chris and Jackie Allaire, Mrs. Sue Murray and Mrs. Annette Querfurth, all of Carmel Valley, and Mrs. Yvonne Rianda, of Pacific Valley; brothers Louis Allaire, of Carmel Valley, and Dr. Basil Allaire, of Carmel; sisters Mrs. Eleanore Cullen, of San Jose, and Mrs. Dorothy Lineberger, of San Francisco; and five grandchildren.

The family has requested that any memorial contributions be made to the Cancer Recovery Project, 23845 Holman Highway, Carmel.

Saltwater threat

Environmental Effects of Groundwater Usage

IF WELL fields were to be distributed equitably throughout the Valley, and if winter rains always recharged the aquifer, projected demands for water might be met with little environmental damage other than loss of surface flows in the Carmel River. In fact, neither of these two conditions is met.

Under natural conditions, when the population was small, the Valley floor and river banks have supported a growth of willows, sycamores and other vegetation which provided a habitat for wildlife, and helped to retard erosion of the river banks during floods.

The drawdown of the water table around operating wells (cone of depression) is damaging to trees and shrubs which depend upon groundwater through the dry season. The situation is particularly serious during drought years such as 1975-76-77.

One of the Cal-Am wells in Mid-Valley has reduced the water level to 60 feet below the surface (March 1977), and the average level in Mid-Valley observation wells is 43.5 feet below the surface. Damage to riparian vegetation has been documented over the years by Edwin Lee and others; extensive evidence of damage was presented at the PUC hearings in Case 9530 in December 1976.

Plans for additional production by Cal-Am rely entirely upon pumping from the Carmel Valley aquifer. A total production by all users is envisaged to be about 14,000 acre-feet, as opposed to 5,500 acre-feet averaged over the past 10 years. Any such massive increase will widen and intensify the damage to the natural environment of the Valley floor.

Additional environmental damage may be caused as we restrict the normal flow of groundwater to the ocean. Such water is not "wasted"; it maintains the estuarine and lagoonal communities near the river's mouth, and is probably essential to the complex fauna of the Carmel Bay, designated by the State as an Area of Special

Biological Importance (ASBS).

The Rancho Canada Golf Course currently withdraws 550,000 gallons of water per day from the aquifer in Carmel Valley for irrigation purposes. The proposed hotel projects' water needs will be 54,186 gallons per day less than the water currently used for irrigation. This amounts to a savings of approximately 61 acre-feet a year.

Single parents host end-of-week party

The week's calendar of the Monterey Peninsula chapter of Parents Without Partners will begin with a TGIF party Friday, Jan. 13, at the Briar House, Mission and Seventh, Carmel. The no-host end-of-week celebration begins at 5 p.m.

Also planned is an evening of dancing Saturday, Jan. 14. Single parents will meet at 8:30 p.m. at the Casa Munras, Fremont and Munras Aves., Monterey, and perhaps move on to other nightspots for dancing.

A sandcast candle-making party is planned Sunday, Jan. 15. Meet at Lovers Point Beach in Pacific Grove at 11:30 a.m. and bring paraffin, old crayons, a pan in which to melt the paraffin, something to feed the fire and a sack lunch.

The PWP general meeting is scheduled Tuesday, Jan. 17, 7:30 p.m., in the community room of the Monterey Public Library, 625 Pacific St., Monterey. Election of new officers is on the agenda.

Parents Without Partners is a nonsectarian organization devoted to the interests and welfare of all single parents, regardless of custody of children. Annual dues are $14; guest privileges are granted for a two-month period.

CARMEL SPORTS

Two down in Padres' quest for league crown

By JAY POSNER

AFTER OPENING the defense of their Mission Trail Athletic League title by defeating Hollister 65-51 Friday, the Carmel High Padres got a scare Saturday night from the Salinas Cowboys. But Dave Stevenson's shot off a missed Padre jumper with six seconds left gave Carmel a slim 38-36 victory.

The Padres were playing without two starters. Forward John Frincke had the flu and center Will Wilkinson was sidelined with a turned ankle. They trailed throughout the first three quarters. Carmel made only two of 13 field-goal attempts in the first quarter and the Padre game total was only 14-45 for 31.1 per cent.

Carmel trailed 24-17 at halftime and 31-28 after three quarters before Stevenson's offensive rebound basket with 5:31 left gave Carmel their first lead of the night, 32-31. Salinas came right back on a Greg Heidel basket to take the lead, but Tom Frincke put into two free throws with 5:10 left to give the Padres a 34-33 lead. However, Salinas never quit and a jumper by Greg McCready with 3:50 remaining gave the Cowboys their last lead of the night, 35-34.

Twenty-five seconds later,

John Lucido's jump shot put the Padres ahead 36-35. Salinas' Jim Laughton tied the game with a free throw at the 2:46 mark. Sixteen seconds later, the Cowboys rebounded a missed Padre shot and tried to stall for a final shot. But Salinas turned the ball over as Stevenson scooped up a loose ball with 1:28 left. Carmel stalled for the next 1:12 then called time out with 16 seconds remaining. With nine seconds to go, Frincke's jumpshot missed, but Stevenson picked up the rebound and put it in for the winner with six seconds popped in 12. Frincke led the Padres with 10 rebounds while center Jim Irwin pulled in seven as did Stevenson. Greg Heidel led Salinas with 14 points.

THE JUNIOR varsity game was just as exciting with the Cowboys winning 47-46 as Danny Deaver made two free throws with 13 seconds remaining. Deaver dropped 18 points to lead Salinas in scoring. Carmel was led by Adam Sherburne, who scored 16 points, and Art Strum, who tossed in 13. Salinas also won the freshman contest field goal attempts (43.9 per cent) although the Padres hit only three of 12 in the third quarter. Tom Frincke had 16 points and nine rebounds and brother John had 14 points and 13 rebounds. Ed Cecena led Hollister with 23 points.

Hollister won both early games, 43-33 in the JV contest, and 53-18 in the freshman game. Adam Sherburne and Art Strum led the JV's with 13 and 12 points, respectively. David Nottenkamper topped the Carmel freshmen with nine points.

The Padres host Gonzales High School tomorrow night. The Gonzales varsity has a 4-9 won-lost record in play this season.

Bob Hope, Jimmy Demaret to join players in pre-Crosby exhibition match

Comedian Bob Hope, Jimmy Demaret, winner of the 1952 Crosby tournament, and several "oldtimers" from the venerable golf championship are scheduled to play an exhibition match Wednesday at Pebble Beach.

The match is scheduled to start at 9:30 a.m., said Ted Durein, of Carmel, press director for the 37th annual Crosby Pro-Am. The tournament starts Thursday and the final round of play is scheduled for Sunday.

"What I am really thrilled with is the appearance of the old pros my father started this tournament for," said Nathaniel Crosby, Crosby's 16-year-old son and sponsor of the tournament since his father's death in October. "I think the galleries will love them. The public should really like to see these legendary figures play golf once again."

The purse for this year's tournament totals $225,000. On Sunday, the 30 low-scoring teams and the 60 professionals with the lowest scores will play for the money at Pebble Beach.

Crosby started the tournament in 1937 at the Rancho Santa Fe Golf Course, near San Diego, according to Durein. The first purse was $2,500. The tourney was suspended in 1942 during World War II.

Carmel swimmer wins pair of 100-yard races

Kathy Walthour, a 1977 graduate from Carmel High School, now a freshman at William Woods College in Fulton, Mo., swept two first-place awards at an intercollegiate swim meet in December.

Miss Walthour placed first in the 100-yard freestyle and the 100-yard individual medley against the University of Missouri-St. Louis. The final score was 79-44.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Walthour, of Carmel.

"A little nonsense now and then, is relished by the best of men." —Willy
Wonka

THE BIG HORSE and his favorite pony were grazing together in the far corner of the pasture leaving one outcast pony standing hopefully by the gate. So I fed the lonely pony first.

He got about three gigantic mouthfuls. Thundering hooves warned that the other two pasture residents were on their way to breakfast also. Like a thunderbolt, the ex-racehorse stretched his long legs at a gallop. Keeping right up with him was the tiniest pony, although she needed three strides to his one. Her legs flickered like a hummingbird's wings.

The outcast pony backed off apprehensively. He backed one foot, two feet, three feet, nine and one half inches away. This was precisely the margin of safety.

The big horse threw him a meaningful scowl as he galumphed to a stop at the feeder. Teeth bared, ears back, he gestured to his favorite pony also. She too backed off the required three feet nine and one half inches.

Now the horse opened his mouth incredibly wide and tried to swallow the entire contents of the manger at once. With his mouth overstuffed, he repeated his threatening gestures to the watching ponies. Several pony-sized mouthfuls fell to the ground near them.

"Thank you, O Supreme Prince," murmured the ponies, darting nearer to grab what had been dropped. This is the way breakfast is served every morning.

"How can I explain," I asked my wise friend, "that the best fun of having horses is not in riding or horse shows. It's just watching them, their personalities, their natures."

"KELP is what sea horses eat."

"It's because they supplement our own nature," she replied. "Just when you think human life is a serious thing, here comes some Shetland Pony doing something ridiculous to restore your sense of perspective."

JUST OFF the coast of California, kelp grows in great abundance. It is one of the largest plants in existence. It can reach a length of over 700 feet and can grow as much as 50 feet in a year. It also is one of the best sources of trace minerals when fed to horses as a feed supplement.

When I get to Carmel, I regularly pick up an armful of kelp. The dry years so reduced the size of Carmel Beach that the ocean daily delivers fresh kelp to the foot of the 13th Street steps. At home I rinse the sand from the kelp by dipping it in a bucket of fresh water. Then I lay it out on a plank and chop it with a cleaver. It's the same kitchen skill we horsewives use to chop onions or parsley.

The chopped kelp dries quickly. I throw a handful, wet or dry, into the manger at every feeding.

Each year, our cropland soils become more impoverished in trace minerals. Cows and horses both will push their heads through barbed wire fences to gain access to grass grown on richer soil not previously grazed upon and not mineral depleted. Persistent wood chewers may be trying to tell us their diet is mineral deficient. Feeding kelp may reduce wood chewing.

Excess kelp, that which falls off the plank and gets dirty, that which gets rained upon and goes slimy, I spade into the flower bed. It is an excellent soil conditioner as well.

"AREN'T YOU going to make any New Year's resolutions?" I asked my 10-year-old. "No," she replied with a world-weary sigh. "I haven't used all of last year's yet."

Last week's Feedbag was first printed on Dec. 28, 1973, and contained my New Year's resolutions for 1974. A note indicating it was a reprint was inadvertently omitted. Apologies to those readers who thought they were reading brand new resolutions. And apologies to my human and equine friends who know well that I haven't used up all the old ones yet.

Valley people elected to Military Order

An active organization, the Monterey Bay Chapter of the Military Order of the World Wars is headed by the Rev. Howard E. Bull, pastor at the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula, who serves as commander of the order.

A number of Valleyites are on the membership roster including those who serve on the executive board: Robert Cayce, marshal; Stanley Hawley, first vice commander; James McCabe, staff member; and Harold Barry, chaplain.

Serving with them are Donald Hildreth, second vice commander; George Wahl, judge advocate; Russell Comrie, third vice commander; Edward O'Malley, treasurer; Ernest Smith, historian; Lester Johnson, adjutant; and James A. Brown, staff member.

'Knack' opens at Barnyard

The Knack will open Thursday, Jan. 12, at the Barnyard Theatre, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel, for a five-week run. The play will be staged Thursday-Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 2 p.m.

Written by Ann Jellicoe, the play was first produced on Broadway in 1962 by Mike Nichols. The play was also released in the mid-60s as a film starring Rita Tushingham and Michael Crawford. The film was directed by Richard Lester, who also directed the riotous Beatles movies of the same period — Hard Day's Night and Help!

An aftershow cabaret of music and songs by many Peninsula performers will be presented after Friday and Saturday evening performances.

Theatergoers may lunch on the deck or in the theater before Sunday matinees. Lunch is served at noon.

For reservations or more information, phone 625-1228.

Comedy opens at Studio

Don't Drink the Water, a hilarious Woody Allen comedy, is on stage Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings at the Studio Theatre/Restaurant, on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh, Carmel. Dinner is at 7 and curtain at 8:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings; both are one hour earlier on Sunday.

The play is the story of an American caterer and his wife and daughter who are trapped behind the Iron Curtain and take refuge in the American Embassy. While there, they must deal with the bumbling son of the American ambassador and a priest who has taken up magic as a hobby to while away the time until he is able to leave the country.

'Madame Butterfly' runs at Hidden Valley

Puccini's stunning and tragic love story, Madame Butterfly, will be staged by the Hidden Valley Opera Ensemble Friday and Sunday, Jan. 13-15, at the Hidden Valley Theatre in Carmel Valley. The opera is sung in English, in keeping with a tradition established at Hidden Valley in 1975. Curtain is at 8 p.m. Friday and 2:30 p.m. Sunday.

Last season, the Opera Ensemble presented four full-length operas. The season opened with Puccini's La Boheme and included the West Coast premiere of Transformations by Conrad Susa, Rossini's Barber of Seville and Mozart's beloved classic, The Magic Flute.

An all-new ensemble has been installed at the Hidden Valley Music Seminars' campus this year. The opera program selects 12 young singers each year by competitive audition. The singers live on the Hidden Valley campus for seven months, immersed in a rigorous schedule of study and performance that runs from 8 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. six days a week.

James Douglas Tuggle will conduct Madame Butterfly. Tuggle studied at the International Summer Academy in Salzburg and was the assistant conductor for the 1977 performances of The Ring in Seattle.

Stage director Lincoln Clark is the Seattle Opera's resident stage director. He has also served as a stage director at the Gran Teatro del Liceo in Barcelona and at the opera houses of Hanover, Koblenz and Braunschweig.

Carmel architect Henry Hill has designed the sets for Madame Butterfly. "Everything will be reduced to its simplicities," he says of his set. "There will be an impression of the house. All sorts of shadows will be created by light — the shadows of cherry blossoms, for instance. The action will move from pools of light, constantly changing pools of light."

Madame Butterfly is the story of Cio-Cio San, a geisha girl, in Nagasaki, Japan, in the early 1900s. B. F. Pinkerton, a U.S. Navy lieutenant, has become infatuated with the young girl and tells Sharpless, the U.S. consul, of his intention to marry her for 999 years, with the privilege of annulment when convenient.

Madame Butterfly falls in love with the young lieutenant, renounces her religion and marries him. After they are married, Pinkerton departs with the American fleet and Madame Butterfly waits for his return with her child, little Sorrow, deaf to all suggestions that she has been deserted.

After three years, she hears a cannon shot in the harbor and learns that Pinkerton's ship has returned. She dons her wedding dress and waits for her beloved's arrival.

After waiting all night, she becomes tired and retires to an inner room. While she is asleep, Pinkerton arrives with his friend Sharpless and his American wife, Kate. Pinkerton is convinced to depart without seeing her, and Butterfly returns to find Sharpless and Kate. When she sees her servant in tears she begins to understand what has happened. Kate implores her to turn over Pinkerton's child and Cio-Cio San agrees on the condition that Pinkerton himself make the request.

Kate and Sharpless go to fetch Pinkerton and Cio-Cio San is left alone with her child. She bids little Sorrow farewell and kills herself with her father's ritual dagger. By the time Pinkerton's voice is heard offstage calling her name, she is dead.

Tickets are available at Hidden Valley Music Seminars, Ford Rd. and Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel Valley Village; Countrywide Crafts in the Barnyard, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel; Gadsby's, 324 Main St., Salinas; the How to Do Anything Bookstore, Ocean and Monte Verde, Carmel; Lily Walker Records, 169 Fountain Ave., Pacific Grove; and the Record Cove, 421 Alvarado St., Monterey.

For more information, phone Hidden Valley, 659-3115.

Four-play run at Forest Theater

Cradle Song will be presented by the Staff Players for four performances only Thursday-Sunday, Jan. 12-15, at the Forest Theater-in-the-Ground, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

The play depicts the changes an order of cloistered nuns undergoes as the result of the arrival of a baby who has been left in their care by a mother who begs that they raise her.

As the rigid social order of the convent bends reluctantly, but lovingly, to accommodate the child, each member of the order experiences a mental and emotional transformation as she tries to cope with the unexpected event.

The Staff Players are accomplished graduates, parents, teaching assistants and staff of the Children's Experimental Theatre who perform a variety of theater classics throughout the season for the benefit of the scholarship fund of the CET.

Admission is $3.50 for adults and $2 for children.

For reservations or more information, phone 624-1531.

Musical comedy at Barnyard Theatre

Jerry Winters will present a musical comedy show at the Barnyard Theatre, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel, Tuesday and Wednesday, Jan. 17-18. Curtain is at 8:30 p.m.

Winters, who performed for many years on the Monterey Peninsula, has returned to Carmel after working at the London Hilton.

Winters, who combines comedy, a baritone voice and piano, will be backed up by Bill Jackson on drums and bass.

15 make RLS dean's list

Three students from Carmel received straight As during the first academic term at Robert Louis Stevenson School in Pebble Beach. The trio — freshman Richard Foote and sophomores Emeric McDonald and Cheryl Sailer — was among 15 local students on the dean's honor roll.

Each student maintained a minimum 3.5 grade-point average. They were Christina Aiello, John Corbett, Carol Cunningham, Kathy Erskine, Jenny Hogan, Lisa Lockwood and Michele Ramsey.

Others were Rebecca Paravicini, Carol Nickbarg, John Ferriter, Dan McDonald and Lyn Stephson.
